

Forty Building Lots Offered in Three New Additions

The above drawing, prepared for The Pilot-Tribune by Ray Gillett, shows the West school neighborhood, scene of what promises to become one of the outstanding house-building projects in recent Blair history. Forty building lots are offered in the three sub-divisions shown above.

Karl Christensen and Simon Korshoj are owners of the new Lincoln Park addition, created from the block-square tract of land occupied by the former Howes (Haller) residence. The spacious Haller house is being wrecked. Already, two modern houses are nearing completion on lots 4 and 5 of this block, and others will be built. A block of paving will be laid between Center and West streets along what was formerly the Haller driveway.

Alfred Paulsen, owner of the former Maurice Mehrens property, plans to raze the Mehrens home and divide that land into seven building lots, as shown in the above drawing. He will erect low-cost homes.

Mrs. A. P. Simonson has had her land divided into 20 lots, and will offer 19 of them for sale. Already she has sold one. She plans to continue to reside in her own home, located in lot one.
